We are delighted that you chose to share this special time with us at Copper Vine. Our walls are steeped in a history of gathering, savoring and celebrating that dates back to 1876.

Established by two French immigrants as a bar to serve men working at the Poydras Market across the street, Maylie & Esparbe's Café was both rowdy and refined, as it is credited with serving the first table d'hôte, or pre-fixe dinner, in New Orleans. Over the next century, the family-owned French Creole restaurant would evolve with a Maylie at the helm until they closed the doors on New Year's Eve 1986, when the founder's grandson, Willie Maylie, and his wife, Anna May, operated the restaurant and lived on the second floor, where you are seated today.

Our West Indies-style Italianate structure is listed on the National Register of Historic Places, and, for seventy years, a wild, purple wisteria vine grew through the building, blooming over the balcony out front. When Brechtel Hospitality opened Copper Vine in the fall of 2018, it was with an eye toward the future of New Orleans hospitality and a goal to revive the spirit and tropical charm of this historic corner on Poydras Street. We hope you feel that energy while you are here. And we hope it brings you back soon.
